PARTY

Northalsted Market Days

Boystown

If you thought Chicago Pride Fest was a color-doused spectacle of dancing, food and people watching, you ain't seen nothing yet. The 29th annual, six blocks-long Northalsted Market Days (Halsted Street between Belmont Avenue and Addison Street) is back, with thousands expected to peruse roughly 400 vendors selling art, crafts, fest eats and beer. Between shopping, rock out to live tunes, featuring Jon Secada (8:30 p.m. Saturday), "Idol" finalists Blake Lewis/Gina Glocksen (5:15 p.m./6:45 p.m. Sunday) and headliners Joan Jett and the Blackhearts (8:30 p.m. Sunday). With all the Prop 8 news out this week, we don't doubt this year's Market Days will be a party indeed. $7 donation.

When: 11 a.m.-10 p.m. Saturday and Sunday

TRY

New drinks, burgers and pizza

Little Italy, Old Town

There's plenty of opportunity to try something new thanks to new bars and restaurants popping up all around town. If you're sick of your same-old burger and pizza haunts, look to Urban Burger Bar (1578 N. Clybourn Ave. 312-255-0055) and Sono Wood Fired (1582 N. Clybourn Ave. 312-255-1122) for a fresh twist. Set next door to each other, these spots offer a diverse array of specialty patties and 'za made with fresh, local ingredients and served with hearty sides. Need a drink to wash it down? Head south to Vintage Lounge (1449 W. Taylor St. 312-526-3647), where small plates and burgers match craft beers, pool tables and, on weekends, DJs and bottle service. Keep the Little Italy party going at recently opened lounge the Bar 10 Doors (1251 W. Taylor St. 312-226-1611).

Urban Burger Bar

When: Hours vary; check metromix.com for details

Black Eyed Peas tix

River North

Get thee to Sound-Bar (226 W. Ontario St. 312-787-4480) for a chance to win tickets to the Black Eyed Peas' Aug. 13 concert at Allstate Arena. Tickets include party-bus transportation to and from the show—a convenient proposition, because Will.i.am is performing a post-concert DJ set that night at Sound-Bar. You need to show up to enter and must be present when raffle winners are announced the same night.

ROCK

Lolla parties

River North

In case you haven't heard, there's a little music festival in town this weekend called Lollapalooza (11 a.m.-10 p.m. through Sunday, Grant Park, 500 S. Columbus Drive). If you can't afford the $90-$215 to get in, there are plenty other ways to experience the fest after Lolla lights die down. Here are a few of our favorite after-shows and parties; get the full list at metromix.com:

»» Magnetic Zeros after party at Crimson Lounge, 333 N. Dearborn St.

Info: 11 p.m. Saturday. No cover.

»» Jukebox The Ghost, Skybox, The Spinto Band at Bottom Lounge, 1375 W. Lake St.

Info: 10:15 p.m. Saturday. Free with RSVP (bottomlounge.com).

»» Minus The Bear, Miniature Tigers at Double Door, 1572 N. Milwaukee Ave.

Info: 11 p.m. Saturday $20 at the door

»» Health, Chandeliers, Red Electric Rainbow at Reggie's Rock Club, 2109 S. State St.

Info: 10 p.m. Sunday. $10.

Lolla extras

Head to chicago.metromix.com/lolla all weekend for Lollapalooza photos, random observations and oodles of reviews.

SEE

Art on the "L" Loop

Ever look at the collection of faces on the train and think, "this could be an art exhibit"? The folks behind Art on Track (Adams and Wabash "L" platform, 200 S. Wabash Ave.), a special eight-car train displaying installations from artists and galleries, thought so too. For one night, the art-packed train will circle the Loop, making stops so patrons can change cars to see different exhibits. Spend as much time browsing as you'd like and come back with your wristband to see it all again. $8-$10. Ticket booths located at Adams/Wabash and Washington/Wells stations.

When: 5-10 p.m. Saturday

THE NEWS IN NUMBERS

Did you read today's Lollapalooza story on pages 6-7? If you haven't, consider this a mathematical warm-up. And if you have, consider this your cool-down. Here are some interesting numbers from the week's news.

Buffett

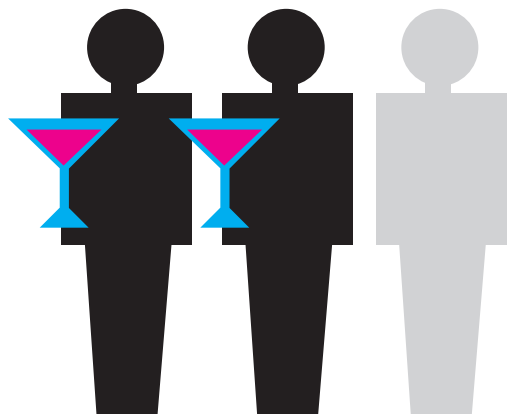

Gates

40

That's how many U.S. billionaires have pledged to give away at least half of their wealth as part of a charitable campaign by Warren Buffett and Bill Gates, according to Reuters.

That's how many Chicagoans said Chicago has changed for the better during the past 10 years, according to a Tribune/WGN poll. Forty-five percent said the city is worse, 26 percent said it's stayed about the same and 4 percent didn't know.

67%

That's how many American adults said they drink alcohol, according to a Gallup poll released this week, the highest rate in 25 years, Reuters reported.

50,000

That's how many U.S. troops will be left in Iraq at the end of the month, President Obama said this week as he addressed the troop drawdown.

Listen up, fellas

You think Don Draper's retro "Mad Men" fashion is the way to attract the ladies? Maybe not, according to new research published this week in the Journal of Experimental Psychology, Reuters reported. The secret lies in the color—specifically, red.

According to research, women in the U.S., England, Germany and China said they found men pictured in red or framed in red more sexually attractive than in other colors. They also suggested that even a red tie could convey a more confident businessman. You're welcome, guys.

49

That's how old President Obama, who swung through Chicago for part of the week, turned Wednesday.

Lollapalooza 2010

Monster of rock

By Tracy Swartz | REDEYE

You think you know all there is to know about Lollapalooza? Sure, you've got the band guide, printed your Grant Park map and packed your water bottle and ironic fanny pack. But do you truly understand the scope of the music festival?

RedEye dug up some facts you might not know about our city's biggest concert, like that Lollapalooza was the nation's third-highest-grossing music festival of 2009, according to Billboard Boxscore. And that the event got bigger this year when audience capacity was increased from 75,000 to 95,000 and the fest's footprint grew from 80 to 115 acres.

Just in time for the Lolladays, RedEye breaks down Lollapalooza by the numbers. TSWARTZ@TRIBUNE.COM

NEWSDAY

For the first half of its new album, "The Suburbs," Arcade Fire seems trapped in an artistic cul-de-sac of its own creation.

In the Canadian indie-rock collective's attempt to indict the comforts and complacency of suburban life, Win Butler and his pals adopt a lazy, kind of lifeless musical backdrop to kick things off. The bland sounds are meant to set off the lyrical zingers—"When all of the wall that they built in the '70s finally fall ... meant nothing at all," Butler sings in the title track—and they do.

However, succeeding at making something bland or annoying (and, man, do they succeed at that in the cloying "Rococo") is kind of a hollow victory and somewhat misguided, considering how good the second half of "The Suburbs" is. Starting with "Half Light II (No Celebration)," the album crackles with the lively, rousing rock anthems that made the band's debut "Funeral" stunning and its follow-up "Neon Bible" entertaining.

The glam-punk rave-up "Month of May" is an adrenaline thrill, while "Wasted Hours" is all lilting melodies and delightful restraint. "Sprawl I (Flatland)" is knotted in Butler's intense, anguished vocals and the band's stark beauty, but "Sprawl II (Mountains Beyond Mountains)" is pure sunshine from Regine Chassagne, so sweet-sounding that the keyboards practically break into a skip.

Maybe the introductory humdrum is needed to make the rest of "The Suburbs" sound that much more triumphant. Then again, considering the current dark realities, maybe not.

Kick-Ass

Available now

Based on the "Kick-Ass" comic by Mark Millar and John Romita Jr., this entertaining hero film features charming and engaging characters, plenty of fiery action and a nicely paced story heavy on snappy dialogue and fun twists. Talented filmmaker Matthew Vaughn brings together a nice ensemble cast featuring Mark Strong, Chloe Grace Moretz, Nicolas Cage, Aaron Johnson and Christopher Mintz-Plasse in one of the best surprises of 2010. #### [Bleep] My Dad Says

Justin Halpern

When 28-year-old Justin Halpern was dumped by his girlfriend, he moved in with his 73-year-old father and began tweeting random comments and pieces of advice his father gave him such as: "The worst thing you can be is a liar ... Okay, fine, yes, the worst thing you can be is a Nazi, but then number two is a liar. Nazi one, liar two." Then he thought back and noted advice his father had given to him at various points in his childhood, such as after the first day of kindergarten: "You thought that was hard? If kindergarten is busting your [bleep], I got some bad news about the rest of your life." AMY GUTH, TRIBUNE

Starcraft II: The Wings of Liberty

PC

It's been 12 long years since the first "Starcraft" made us fall in love with the real-time strategy genre of games and introduced the phrase "Zerg Rush" into the everyday lexicon of gaming geeks. Luckily, the sequel is nearly worth the wait. Instead of crafting something totally new, Blizzard took what we loved about the original "Starcraft" and made everything bigger, badder and better. PC gamers, it's time to put down "World of Warcraft" for a while and take your old pals the Protoss for a spin.

Got Your Back

T.I.

T.I. picks up where "Paper Trail" left off with his new single. Like "Live Your Life," it has the slow, grand synth riffs and the irresistible chorus—handled by Keri Hilson this time, instead of Rihanna—while T.I. drops rhymes about staying faithful. Sure, "Got Your Back" fits T.I.'s recent hit-making formula, but when something works this well, why not stick with it?

The Devil's Teardrop

7 p.m. Sunday, Lifetime Movie Network

A retired FBI handwriting specialist (Tom Everett Scott) reluctantly helps an agent (Natasha Henstridge) hunt a killer terrorizing large groups in Washington, D.C. The adaptation of a Jeffery Deaver book offers decent suspense for a while, but the second-half twists and climactic confrontation are so overly foreshadowed, you won't need to keep watching—unless you want to see how the needless child custody subplot (Rena Sofer is wasted here) and inevitable attraction between the leads pans out. Then again, those are pretty obvious too.

When did porn get so complex?

Believe it or not, there was a time when Internet porn didn't exist. In "Middle Men," Jack (Luke Wilson) neglects his family in Houston to help two drug-crazy idiots (Giovanni Ribisi, Gabriel Macht) in L.A. make millions by charging people worldwide for online adult entertainment. The Russian mafia has a few issues with that.

The buzz: The movie is inspired by the life of businessman Christopher Mallick (who also produced "Middle Men"), though ya gotta wonder if Mallick's career actually resembled the trajectory of a mob movie and led him unconvincingly from his uptight Southern family into the arms of a young porn star (Laura Ramsey). At the very least, the real-life entrepreneur probably is a more charismatic person than Wilson.

The verdict: Why jumble up a true story about big money and porn with so many senseless diversions? Just make a documentary. Jack never seems like the kind of entertainment mogul who could romance Audrey Dawns (Ramsey), and so many characters emerge as saints or villains that the film may as well have been shot in black and white. Maybe "Middle Men" would develop some momentum if Jack didn't add voiceover to explain even the most self-explanatory moments. Instead, the best, most button-pushing joke is in tackling sex and self-love as something so fundamental that even terrorists could become addicted to a porn site at the risk of having their whereabouts tracked. If only.

The director's movies rake in millions—so why so many haters?

MCT

PHILADELPHIA What's wrong with this picture?

M. Night Shyamalan's "The Last Airbender," his adaptation of Nickelodeon's "Avatar: The Last Airbender" cartoon series, topped $125 million in its first month of release. It's already the 13th highest-grossing film of the year, and in the few overseas markets where it has opened so far (Russia, Ukraine, Japan), the CGI-driven fantasy has attracted enthusiastic crowds and about $30 million in additional box office revenue.

But take a look at Rotten Tomatoes or Metacritic, the online movie-review aggregators, and "The Last Airbender" is among the most widely reviled releases of 2010: "Mind-bendingly turgid!" "The worst botch of a fantasy epic!" "An agonizing experience in every category!"

Like the menacing creatures lurking in the dark woods of the filmmaker's "The Village," like the ominous aliens skulking through the cornfields of his "Signs," the Shyamalan haters are out there, loud and legion.

"Yeah, it's a phenomenon—that's a kind way to put it," says the director, laughing it off last week at a Starbucks close to his Chester County, Pa., farm. "It's something that I've thought about forever. ... It feels a little bit personal."

WHAT'S NEXT

M. Night Shyamalan is honing the script for a thriller about a father whose child goes missing. Bradley Cooper, Gwyneth Paltrow and Bruce Willis (above, from left) will star—if scheduling allows. Shyamalan says the script is like "Taken," but with a supernatural element.

Shaun Toub, who plays the fire-wielding master Uncle Iroh in "The Last Airbender," says the vitriol is uncalled for.

"I understand critics have a job to do, and I understand that the movie is not perfect," the actor says.

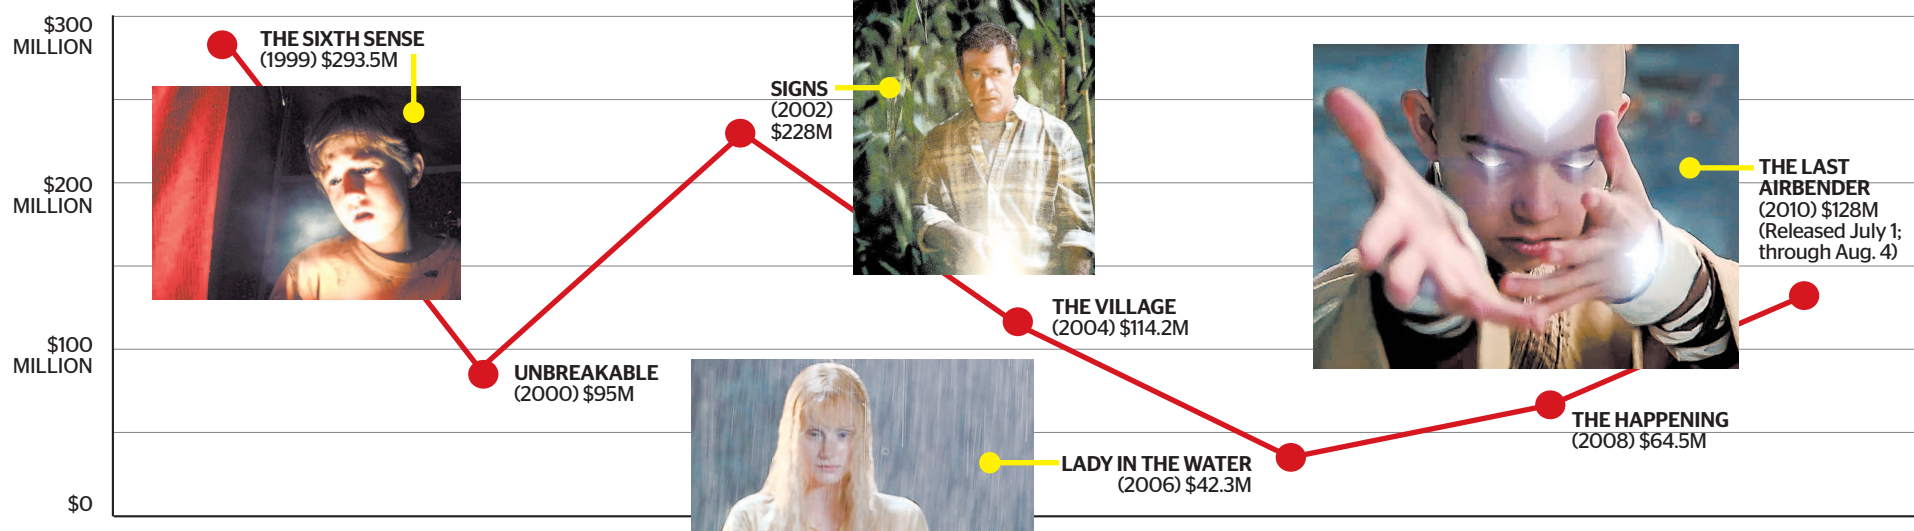

"But I don't appreciate it when it becomes personal, and some of the attacks are personal, directed at Night. The comments are overboard."

While Shyamalan likens the presence of his name above the title to John Grisham or Stephen King putting theirs on the cover of their respective tomes, such a move, he says, is perceived by many as arrogance.

"I think I get it," he says. "It's the presentation of the movies as author-driven. ... Here in the United States, that comes with a stigma of hubris."

CHARTING SHYAMALAN

M. Night Shyamalan has directed six movies since his breakout with "The Sixth Sense." Here is how they have fared at the domestic box office. SOURCE: BOXOFFICEMOJO.COM

Basket case

By M. Kathleen Pratt

It's a wonder Division Street didn't have a cute little sandwich shop and yuppie deli like Wicker Basket Cafe before now. Promising made-to-order sandwiches, pre-made salads and entrees, baked goods, coffee and weekend brunch specials, the Ukrainian Village (bordering on Wicker Park) shop is just what the neighborhood ordered—in theory, anyway. If only it delivered on all those promises.

High point: The Gooey Monkey ($4.95). So over-the-top, but so, so good. Just imagine: two pieces of challah coated in cinnamon and sugar with peanut butter, bananas and boysenberry jam between them. Now grill the whole thing.

Low point: Rumored brunch specials. Wicker Basket Cafe offers brunch specials such as French toast, pancakes and crepes on weekends. Or so we were told on the phone. But when we arrived on a Saturday morning and asked about the daily brunch special (perhaps some French toast, we hinted?) we were told the “French toast chef” wasn't in. Co-owner Terry Tarant, who operates the place with husband Cary, assures us we'll be able to expect one brunch special Saturdays and one or two every Sunday from here on out. To be sure, call ahead.

Feel free to pass on: The breakfast sandwiches. There are just three from which to choose (one panino and two croissants), and the two we sampled were equally lackluster. The best of the bunch might be the simplest: a bacon, egg and cheese croissant ($3.95).

Is it lunchtime yet? If you're feeling limited by the tiny breakfast sandwich lineup and that elusive French toast chef isn't in, never fear. The regular menu consists of more than 15 hot and cold sandwiches ($4.95-$6.95), from the Ultimate Grilled Cheese (cheddar, provolone, bacon and tomato on Italian bread) to the Antipasto Sandwich (salami, prosciutto, provolone, artichokes, roasted red peppers, olives, giardiniera and vinaigrette on rustic Italian bread). You also can build your own from a selection of Boar's Head meats and cheeses and a substantial list of breads, veggies and condiments.

Best seats: Because it's located at the far western end of the busy Division Street strip, this is the rare spot where you won't have to fight for a sidewalk table. Take advantage and nab a seat.

Buzz factor: Bouncing off the walls. Metropolis Coffee runs like water here, and there's a full complement of espresso drinks.

Crowd surfing: With inexpensive sandwiches and ready-made, grab-and-go deli items as a main draw, it's no surprise that most customers are 'hood neighbors who arrive in come-as-you-are, weekend-morning attire.

How to be a green grilling machine

The Fourth of July always makes me a little sad. It means that only a few months of summer, barbecues and warmth remain. The upside, of course, is that the farmers markets finally are filled with rows upon rows of beautiful local fruits and veggies.

But as much as I enjoy cooking up a storm in my kitchen, I'd much rather hang out on the porch with a beer while the grill does the work. Plus, it's easy to keep my carbon footprint light.

In general, a little backyard grilling isn't going to harm the environment. But there are some simple steps you can take to make your outdoor experience a green one.

» Opt for a gas or electric grill over one that burns charcoal and uses lighter fluid. Some commercial charcoal is covered in chemicals. If you must use charcoal, use the hardwood lump variety.

» It'll mean some extra dishes later, but use regular plates and metal utensils for serving and eating if your group isn't too large. Disposable products made of biodegradable materials, such as corn and bamboo, also are available.

» Impress your friends' taste buds with fruits and vegetables from your garden or farmers market. Corn, peaches, squash, peppers and eggplant all are in season and taste great marinated and grilled. Instead of store-bought hot dogs or burgers, purchase meat from your local market. To make up for the higher price, buy less than you generally would—quality makes up for quantity.

» Ditch the cans and bottles. Use pitchers to mix fun cocktails or non-alcoholic drinks garnished with fresh fruit. For a larger guest list, a keg of beer also may be a more economical and eco-friendly option—especially if it's a local brew.

And enjoy it while it lasts, Chicago. Before we know it, there will be a foot of ice on the ground and no local food in sight.

Do the roster shuffle

It's the latest craze—Chicago teams parting ways with big names

By Ryan Smith

FOR REDEYE

Goaltender Antti Niemi's departure this week from the Blackhawks marked the latest personnel change in the sad, summerlong dismantling of the reigning championship team. The Hawks, of course, aren't the only Chicago team with a job turnover problem. The Cubs, Bears and Bulls all have been playing roster hot potato lately. In case you've lost track of all the comings and goings, RedEye recaps a handful of the big-time departures from the sports scene.

RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

Ted Lilly ▶

CUBS PITCHER

Status: Traded to the L.A. Dodgers on Aug. 1

Why we'll miss him: Perennially underrated, Lilly had been arguably the Cubs' best starter during the past four years.

Why we won't: His super-intense stares while on the mound literally scared us sometimes.

Kirk Hinrich

BULLS GUARD

Status: Traded to Washington on July 8

Why we'll miss him: Captain Kirk's game was scrappy, not flashy, and it was easy to like his hard-nosed play and defensive prowess.

Why we won't: After his stellar 2006-'07 season, Hinrich suffered a few inexplicably subpar years and never really fit in with the Derrick Rose-led offense.

TRIBUNE FILE PHOTOS

Alex Brown ▶

BEARS DEFENSIVE END

Status: Released April 1; signed two-year deal with New Orleans

Why we'll miss him: He's not a wuss. Brown missed only one game in his eight-year career with the Bears and finished fourth in franchise history in sacks.

Why we won't: Hard to find a reason. Brown was a cost-cutting casualty after the Bears landed Julius Peppers.

Nathan Vasher ▶

BEARS CORNERBACK

Status: Released March 17; signed two-year deal with San Diego

Why we'll miss him: We still have fond memories of Vasher's 108-yard missed field-goal return for a TD at Soldier Field in 2006.

Why we won't: Declining play. Plagued by injuries and inconsistency, Vasher hadn't done much on the field since that TD return.

Ryan Theriot ▶

CUBS INFIELDER

Status: Traded along with Lilly to the Dodgers on Aug. 1

Why we'll miss him: Like Hinrich, The Riot was a fan favorite in Chicago not because of his stats, but his hustle and attention to "the little things."

Why we won't: Likable or not, Theriot was having a bad season, and he became expendable with the emergence of prospect Starlin Castro.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redvechicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Make a 2- to 7-letter word from the letters in each row. Add points of each word, using scoring directions at right. Finally, 7-letter words get a 50-point bonus. "Blanks" used as any letter have no point value. All the words are in the Official Scrabble Players Dictionary, 4th Edition. ## The Last Airbender

July 2010

Watching dust fly in the air looks better than these cheap-o "airbending" special effects.

How to Train Your Dragon

March 2010

OK, fine, we accept that dragons cannot exist. But watching them fly around in 3-D makes it seem like they do. Yay, dragons!

Step Up 3D

August 2010

Is Channing Tatum in this sequel? No? Then no need for 3-D.

Avatar

December 2009

The gold standard. You mean Zoe Saldana isn't really a blue Na'vi woman? Pshaw.

Toy Story 3

June 2010
Woody and Buzz are just as awesome in 2-D as 3-D. Superfluous 3-D = annoying gimmick to charge more at theaters.

Justin Bieber: First Step 2 Forever: My Story

February 2011

This flick will be remembered for two things:

- » The beginning of the end for 3-D movies.
- » The first movie title that sounds like a tweet.

Justin Bieber is getting a 3-D movie—are the glasses now half-empty?

The geeky side of us is absolutely gaga for 3-D movies. First, they give us the opportunity to wear those clunky, hipster 3-D glasses. Second, we get to do that silly thing where we reach out our hand because that bow and arrow, dinosaur or fireball seems close enough to touch. But reaching out to tousle Justin Bieber's hair? That's where we draw the line.

Apparently, millions of swoony teenagers think differently. Word came this week that not only will the 16-year-old Canadian heartthrob be writing his memoir (largely pictorial, we're told), but also that he's working on a 3-D movie about his life.

Naturally, it's set to come out around Valentine's Day. Swoon! Or rather, puke!

Plenty of critics already have questioned the ubiquitousness of 3-D, and this new Bieber biopic justifies their arguments even more. Sorry, 3-D, this year's crop of films shows you're heading on a downward spiral.

Cruise control

Even Tom Cruise (right) isn't immune from a paycut. The "Mission Impossible" actor's paycheck for the movie's fourth installment is set to be substantially reduced, compared to previous "MI" films, New York Magazine's Vulture blog reports. Cruise was paid more than $90 million by Paramount to star in the first "Mission Impossible," which hit theaters in 1996. Cruise's latest film, "Knight and Day," also starring Cameron Diaz, has made only about $74 million in the U.S.

"Oh my God, it was the most liberating thing! The stylist just grabbed the back of my hair and took a whole ponytail of hair out. It felt amazing."

JT goes gay

Justin Timberlake is exploring his gay side. The singer is set to voice a gay character in an episode of Fox's cartoon comedy "The Cleveland Show," usmag.com reports. Show creator Rich Appel told Us that JT is "just hysterical" as the guy that Terry (voiced by Jason Sudeikis) falls in love with.

Rosie's baaaack

Rosie O'Donnell (right) just couldn't stay away from daytime TV. The former host of "The Rosie O'Donnell Show" will have a new talk show on Oprah's OWN network, AP reports. O'Donnell told AP that her hour-long, New York-based show will build on what Winfrey's show has done. "It's an honor and a privilege to work with Oprah Winfrey on her network," O'Donnell said in a statement. "I'm excited to be back on daytime television."

SING IT, SETH

Seth MacFarlane has sung parody show tunes as animated characters—now the "Family Guy" creator is putting out a serious album.

MacFarlane told Jay Leno on Thursday that he's working on an album of swing arrangements of classic tunes.

"We kind of deliberately touched stuff that the Deans (Martin) and the Franks (Sinatra) and the Sammys (Davis Jr.) didn't do yet," he said before singing "Cream in My Coffee" for Leno.

THE DIGIT

No. 1

Slot on the Billboard 200 albums chart taken by Avenged Sevenfold's "Nightmare," which knocked Eminem's "Recovery" to No. 2 after five weeks at the top, according to billboard.com.

Reality TV flashmob

Would you love to hang out with your favorite D-list celebs? You might get your chance next April, when e5 Global Media is set to launch a reality TV convention—The Reality Rocks Expo—in L.A. According to the Hollywood Reporter, which is owned by e5, the convention will include live demonstrations, stage performances and celebrity panels.
